A MORE SEASONED answer than that of people who are sounding the alarm is that the troubles which we are witnessing do not justify an affirmative answer to either of those questions.

I have heard about the death of this or that party ever since I could read the newspapers. In 1904 the Democratic party was divided and defeated. Requiems were duly uttered, but it was in power eight years later.

Even TR announced in 1912 that his party had arrived at a shameful end. He was back in the fold four years later. After the Harding landslide the Democrats were said to be merely awaiting burial, and not a decent one at that,

I am not saying that a political party is immortal. Parties have died. What is more likely in the case of parties which have sharp divisions is that they ultimately change their character or, what is even more likely, they retain their differences but vote together on election day.

That has been true of the present Democratic party. The divisions within its ranks grow sharper with the years but its unity in elections and at the time the Houses of Congress are organized has a way of asserting

Oppenheimer Security Case Closed

The security-risk case of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer as an atomic scientist in the employ of the Atomic Energy Commission has been closed permanently. The AEC has voted four to one to uphold the two-to-one vote of the special three-man board which rejected him as a security risk. There can be no appeal.

Therefore, Dr. Oppenheimer will see no more secret information about atomic energy. That much can be settled by a vote. But nothing else about the problem this controversial man has posed for his countrymen and his government can be disposed of so easily.

It is a problem of human behavior. No man on earth has lived closer to it than Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who directed the original A-bomb development-the Manhattan Project. Dr. Oppenheimer was his principal adviser in the years while the United States was learning how to usher in the atomic age.

Dr. Oppenheimer also was the general's principal headache. He testified before this special board he was in continuous trouble with most of the scientists who worked on the project. They could not understand why they shouldn't tell one another and anyone else who would their scientific lives.

He did not dare to get militarily tough with them because they had to be handled like scientists, not soldiers. If word had got around that they couldn't have the camaradie of the intellectualism that was their stock in trade, some of them would not have been available for the Manhattan Project at all.

Gen. Groves had to deal with realities, not theories. It was his job to run the Manhattan Project, and it was the project's aim to give the United States the world's first atomic bomb. Therefore, he concentrated on getting along any way he could with the baffling men who were scientifically indispensable although militarily infuriating.

His prize was Dr. Oppenheimer, whose affinity for Kremlinites was prodigious. Gen. Groves says his security officers kept turning in bad reports on Oppenheimer for his Communist taint and that he, himself, could not clear his one-time chief adviser as a security risk now.

But he cleared him in 1942 and thereafter because there was work to be done. The United States did get the A-bomb first, although Gen. Groves feels the Russians came along with a counterpart sooner than expected because some of his Manhattan Project scientists couldn't button up their mouths.

The Oppenheimer security case can be settled by hindsight in 1954 by a vote. But the Oppenheimer case in 1942 and thereafter was something else again. It had to be settled by expediency then. The United States needed his knowledge too desperately to crack down on him as a security risk.

Gen. Groves, it seems to us, might point out now what he is uniquely qualified to knowthat the United States will have a lot of trouble in this scientific age keeping its scientists from letting their knowledge fall into the hands of people who seek to use everything within their power for the destruction of American ideals. It may be necessary to give the scientists some special training in the realities of international pressure politics.

Since this is the season for reviewing the beginnings of independence, it is interesting to note that a witness in a Senate investigation of housing loans has invoked the fifth amendment to keep from testifying about his handling of public funds.

The fifth amendment has been in the news so much in connection with congressional investigatios of persons suspected of being Communist subversives that it has become associated in many minds with fifth columns, instead of with basic constitutional rights.

This is one of the all-weather amendmentsthe original 10 that set forth in some of the plainest language ever written the future restrictions on government by which the Founding Fathers sought to protect the freedom they had won in the Revolutionary War.

The Fifth Amendment provides that "no person . . . shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." It also provides that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; that no citizen shall be tried twice for the same offense; that no American shall be held to answer for a crime without an indictment by a Grand Jury. The Fifth Amendment was not created for the protection of persons accused of Communist affiliations. They are merely among those who seek its protection from time to time, along with all others who (value) its protection lest they be made to testify against themselves when prosecutors lack other means of making a case.

But among the older folks, there are two distinct groups: Those who prefer the simple steaks and chops, and those who hunger for the exotic. The children have not yet had time to develop tastes for strange dishes. The problem of the exotic dishes raises all sorts of interesting angles which will be taken up a little further on.

The remembrances of this childhood zest for eating and the husband's lament, "Gee, this doesn't taste anything like what we used to have at home when I was a boy" has led to widespread use of the description "old-fashioned" to enhance foods prepared by mod-

Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The GI And The Scientist

Dear Babe: Well I see where the scientists of America hold they are an extra special group not tied down by the obligations and rules under which the rest of us work. Hundreds of them are now bellyaching about the Oppenheimer verdict and saying it ruins their morale and can make them hard to get. What goes with those birds? How come they are any different from plumbers, bricklayers, delicatessen clerks, bookkeepers, bus drivers and anybody else when it comes to definite duty to Uncle Sam even when they don't exactly like what happens to a buddy?

I gave Dr. Openheimer all the best of it, which is what the boys handing down the verdict did. He is a "brain" and has done a great job for Uncle Sam in the atomic bomb business. The commission almost apologized to him for its opinion and ruled that he was a loyal American. All it said was that Uncle Sam wouldn't be extra smart to keep him in a high security job in view of his past association with Commies, and if that don't make sense I am off

Everybody knows that Moscow never stops working on anybody it once had on its side in the ball game, and blackmail is its idea of a parlor sport. I am willing to declare Oppie as loyal as anybody in America today, but I would still rule him out as a custodian of top secrets when the Commies play as rough as

For my Horatious at the bridge I want a Horatious who was never Horatious at the Red luncheon.

This "You can't do that to us" attitude of American scientists gripes me. What right have they got to say they won't play on the team if they ain't happy as larks? If an army GI had been palsy - walsy with Commies for quite a few years, joined 'em, dined with 'em and even come across with cash contributions, would all the other GIs get up petitions and say they would not feel like going on with the war if he got taken off the commando raid and limited to kitchen duty?

Suppose it came out that once I had played around with the Reds and even had dinner with a top one in Paris only a couple of years back? Suppose the top sarge took me off the all-important job of leading an attack on an enemy position, would my whole outfit yell, 'This is breaking our hearts. The guy knew only a couple of dozen Commies. He hasn't had lunch with a Red this year. Leave us have him as our leader or we won't do our best."

I just don't get these scientists, in fact I suspect they ain't half as sore as the leftist writers picture them. If you ever find out how the "jury" could be fairer to a guy than this one was to Dr. Oppenheimer let me know. He almost got a testimonial, a super eulogy and a medal despite his associations, his cash contributions and his conflicting answers.

What do his fellow scientists want, orchids? Well, do not worry about me, babe. I am only a poor GI with no brains to speak of and wouldn't know a laboratory from a latrine, but there was no minute in my life, even in the tough spots, when I ever thought Moscow might be right, joined any Red societies or gave a nickel to their cause. Love and kisses, Emergency Emil

French Evacuate Red River Delta

End To Eight-Year Fight Appears Near

SINGAPORE (P-Much of the Red River Delta, key prize in the bitter Indochina war, was falling into the hands of the Communistled Vietminh tonight without a French Union forces were evacuating swiftly from their hard-tohold centers in the Delta area. The end to the savage 8-year-old struggle appeared to be not far off.

The French Union forces were generally withdrawing to their last lifeline-the railway and highway linking the war capital of Hanoi with the seaport of Haiphong, 64 miles to the east.

An Indochina Dunkerque may come soon at the end of this road -"The most dangerous road in the world." Haiphong is France's last beachhead in northern Viet Nam. It is from there that they will have to make the attempt to evacuate tens of thousands of troops, whether as a result of a cease fire or after fighting their way through from Hanoi.

GIANT FIREWORKS - FOURTH OF JULY

A Tribute to — Independence Day! All over the world freedom-hungry people know that this is the Fourth of July in the United States. Not just a date on the calendar. But a day that symbolizes the spirit of freedom in the greatest democracy in the world. It would be well if you - if ALL of us - would pause in our activities and rededicate ourselves to the proposition that all men are created equal . . . and that all men, wherever they live, should and must be as free of tryannical yokes as we are in this blessed land of ours!

Salem Legion 10-0 The East Palestine Junior Legion

swamped the Salem Legion outfit 10-0 Wednesday at Centennial Park. Winning hurler Jim Mankins limited the locals to four hits as his teammates racked two Salem hurlers for seven safeties and at least one score in every inning but two. Jerry Cosgrove was the batting star for Salem, coming up with two doubles. Jim Fife and Matt Klein handled the pitching, with Fife taking the loss. Salem was charged with eight costly fielding errors. The locals now have dropped seven of eight
